

Carol Sletten -

Words & Images

In the past, Carol worked for an ad agency and a university information center, did a stint as a reporter, taught at a community college, was co-owner of an art gallery and collected oral history. When she was on the East Coast, Carol had a gig as an artist in residence, designed publications and had a one-woman show at the Staten Island Botanic Garden.

She is currently focusing on the history, landscape and people of the American West. Her play, books and artwork reflect her ongoing fascination with those subjects.

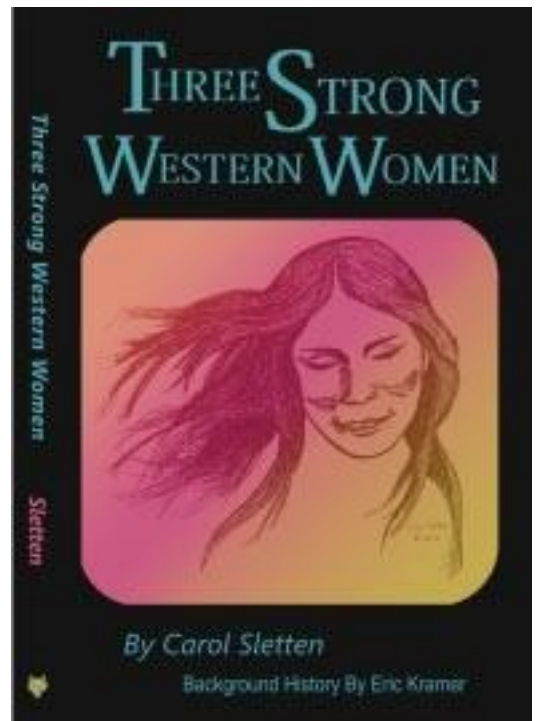

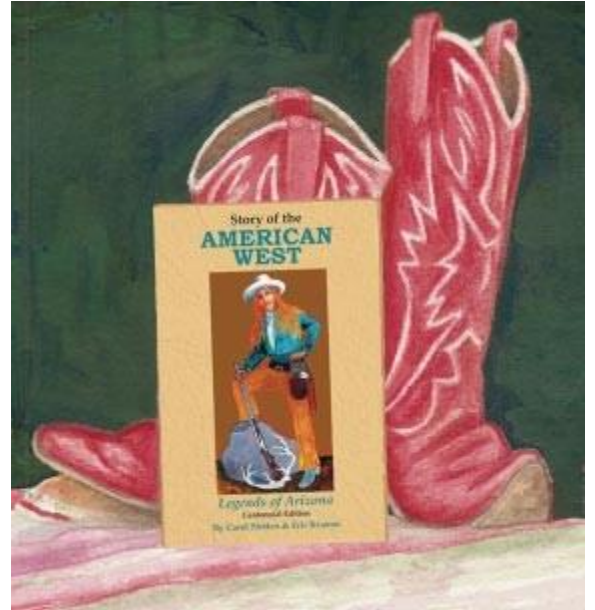

Websites: For art: www.OakHillStudio.com

For books: www.StoryOfTheAmericanWest.com

For work in progress: www.ApacheJesus.com

Address: PO Box 588, Pinetop, AZ 85935

Carol is the co-author and illustrator of Story of the American West ó Legends of Arizona, which weaves quintessential elements of the mythic West into a highly readable history about one of the last untamed regions on the American frontier.

Carol's popular play, Three Strong Western Women, has now been published as a book, which includes 17 background chapters as well the women's gripping and very personal true stories. The characters are the handcart pioneer Emma Lee, who was the 17th plural wife of John D. Lee., the Lutheran missionary Minnie Guenther, who saved many Apache lives and the Apache woman warrior and shaman Lozen, who rode with Geronimo.